

Birthday Cards

Two of Clubs:

Conversationalist

Characteristics: Interestingly, the Two of Clubs has many gifts and aptitudes. They can be excellent at business, particularly in partnerships, and usually are good with others. The life path is a lucky one. This card is protected and they need to feel gratitude for their good fortune. They just need to look around at their lives and they should realize that they are blessed and their fear will be released. They are able to think clearly most of the time and are highly intelligent. If they avoid fear, which can negatively impact their mood, they are clever and charming. Their challenge in life is to accept themselves, their situation and their close relationships. There is a huge variety of personality types in this card. They often need to be around others because of fear of being by themselves. They want people to talk to and make them feel good about themselves. In spite of this they are good conversationalist and very sociable for the most part. However, they can be recluses too, and need absolutely no one. Attachment is the issue and they are afraid of this. Internal fear, especially of change and death, comes from their Karma Card and explains their personality.

Relationships: The Queen of Clubs is often an indication of the sort of relationship they might have. Primarily it is one of learning the meaning of responsibility. The Pluto Card needs to be looked at carefully because it is often associated with difficulties standing in the way of a satisfactory love life. The Two of Clubs are often attractive or even beautiful people in addition to having a good intellect. They appear to be the type who can choose their partner at will. Oddly they often choose the least likely person of all. Women generally do this more than men. Their love of self and emotional well-being are prime movers in their love relationships. They can, unfortunately settle for just anyone, including abusive or otherwise sick individuals, just to be with another person. Co-dependence and a totally disappointing relationship can result. A partner who is beneath them is not unusual, and at that point they commence criticizing even superficial things and paying attention to the negative. Backing off a bit on this tendency can not only help the relationship, but also bring out a better side of their partner. If they let their idealism reign they are both happier. Being careful about who they choose as a partner can help a lot because this card can have just about any partner they want. A very sexual partner is often the choice, according to Mars, but that person can be difficult to get along with and aggressive as well. Two of Clubs people can also be the one to start arguments. Their mental set is such that they like to pick at others and be a fault finder. This, of course does not help in relationships.

Personality Connections: As for Diamond males and Two of Clubs women, there is a powerful love connection that brings pleasure, however, is probably not lasting. Two of Clubs males should be careful with Heart females. That connection is very challenging. Clubs and Diamonds men get along well with Two of Clubs females. If they are a homebody, they would be an excellent choice for a spouse.

Confrontations: Sacred Symbols of the Ancients by Florence Campbell takes a hard stand regarding Two of Clubs. She claims that the Two of Clubs is highly fearful and mentally challenging. However, that is most often not the case.
