Two of Spades:

Rapport

Characteristics: Generally speaking, rapport has the potential to plague them for their entire life. They are very friendly but should not let themselves be self-indulgent or docile. They enjoy, overall, an easier life path than most. Money is often something they marry into. Recognition or fame is sometimes their destiny. They are excellent at most things they do and usually get promoted to levels of leadership at work. This is particularly true of the males. Their second Karma card tells us that higher abilities are present in all of them and naturally when the opportunity arrives they grab it. If they turn to their spiritual side, they can be highly progressive, dynamic and move to shape the world into a harmonious and cooperative place. Partnership in work and friendship is what the Two of Spades represents. A fear of being alone shows us why Twos are also called fear cards and the Two of Spades fits this pattern. All of them are personally hurt if others abuse their friendship or trust, but many will go out of their way to be in the company of other people. The Six is the Karma Card of the Two of Spades and it is one of the more powerful Karma Cards. It states that the Two of Spade has an increased fated quality about it compared to other cards. In addition, their lives get in a rut from time to time, as dictated by the Karma card. This results in challenges in their health and their overall constitution. They totally avoid their emotions and situations that try them in this realm, because they are so involved with their work and letting logic dominate over feelings. Sometimes this means the avoidance of marriage and commitments in romantic relationships. They do experience success in social situations, but the Pluto Card shows some skepticism and indecisiveness romantically. For most of them, active good health habits are critical. The Uranus/Uranus position of the Spiritual Spread is the location of the Two of Spades and this informs us that they all have a strong gift of intuition. They must hone a sincere interest in the spiritual aspect of life, however, to utilize this, something that a lot of Spades tend to not do, rather favoring their strong work and career activities. Logic does not help them, unfortunately, in personal relationships, because they possess a strong, logical mind, which helps them make a good living.

Relationships: Two of Spades do have good karma from past lives and they will receive good returns at some point in their lives. They are the kind that are steady and true and make excellent husbands and wives. Their uncertainty about love and romance comes primarily from the Pluto Card. Long periods of inactivity in their romantic life are brought on by themselves. The fears or doubts that prevent them from starting new partnerships or romantic commitments are the cause of this frequently. It is very helpful to get work done in this emotional area. Some of the better marriage karma of all the cards is in the Two of Spades. However, they need to resolve some of the uncertainty and fear related to being with another person before they can experience a quality marriage. This usually comes later in life. Push-pull relationships are what they have. They push their partner away after wanting them to get closer, apparently afraid of what closer intimacy might bring about. Their approach to love often reflects their highly logical nature. They will often analyze endlessly the concept of marriage and of being together. They try to develop truths and draw conclusions about love and relationships, so that they can sort of quantify it. They, however, often neglect these areas because they are in the emotional realm.

Personality Connections: Women Two of Spades hold vivid fantasies about other Spade males, but Diamond men find them especially attractive. Heart females give Two of Spades men blessings. Club women are friends and companions are friends of both genders. They are a challenge for Club men.

Confrontations: An individual who we might call the classic Two of Spade might have his birthday on May 4th. He would be logically minded and hard working. A computer programmer would be a likely occupation and he is highly successful at what he does. The hottest computer company in the Silicon Valley would be his place of work.
