Five of Clubs:

Crusade for Legitimacy

Characteristics: We find the Five of Clubs always on the go because they have a lot of things they are curious about. These individuals change and have a mental restlessness about them. Changes in their romantic life are there as well as we can see in their Karma Card. Thus, marriage is not usually suitable for them. They love adventure and research and exploring new things. Those interested in commitments, for this reason, are usually seriously avoided. The Five of Hearts is highly restless and practically nomadic. They are so changeable it actually borders on the extreme. Due to the fact that they can relate to a great many individuals on their own level, they are great in sales and promotion. These areas are especially good for the Virgo and Gemini birthdays because of their powerful presence and ways of expressions that can bring good. They have a natural curiosity with a lot of potential for knowledge; however, they do not often utilize it. In addition, they have difficulty sticking to something. Skepticism is often the result, because they do not even get satisfaction from their own categories of belief. They can be disagreeable in debates just to try out the opposite side of a position. A more satisfactory approach is studies in spiritual material, because this can result in satisfaction in their later life and give answers that allow more peace into their being. In that respect, a spiritual teacher would be useful. Moving to a new home or job means a change in lifestyle and thus responsibility. Being flexible helps, but there are still challenges with it. Clandestine love affairs and an inability to make up one's mind about which to choose is in the Ace of Hearts in Venus. A sexy and rich voice tone also comes from the same Ace. A lot of Five of Clubs have big financial resources from the Seven of Clubs in Jupiter, which is a millionaire's card. Frequently they spend it or lose it as quickly as it is received. There should be an avoidance of speculation and gambling. Their tendency for spending money, even with their luck, means they are poor gamblers because they simply do not know when to quit.

Relationships: Values and their attitudes about them are the center of the matter, especially because there will be emotional losses in their life no matter what they do. The restless nature of the Five of Clubs means that they are, perhaps, the least marriageable card in the deck. Commitment is avoided any way they can. The sneaky ones often try to pin the problem on their spouse or partner. But, as a matter of fact, they are profoundly fearful of any relationship because of freedom issues. Clandestine affairs, sometime even with married people, can come about because of this fear coupled with their Ace of Hearts in Venus. Privacy is also something they value highly. In general, they are best off single. Relative to relationships, sometimes it seems that being a Five of Clubs can be a blessing, depending on the individual. They can, on the positive side, relate to almost anyone on their own level. They are also very progressive individuals. As a result they are popular, sociable individuals, but there is an issue with commitments, which they fear. This can be so overwhelming that they are like magnets for sometimes bizarre situations. This can prevent them for having the inner peace necessary for a real relationship.

Personality Connections: Five of Clubs of both genders like to be with Club women. Diamond men and Five of Clubs women often have a good marriage. Heart men are friends of both genders who seem attracted to them. A difficulty can arise because of a karmic connection.

Confrontations: Some however are able to accept this restlessness and inquisitive nature and utilize it in their lives positively. Doing so can bring about a measure of financial success and satisfaction at work. There is an unhappiness with themselves for Five of Hearts. Being unable to accomplish things of significance or worry about finances plagues them.
