Invention is often the result of this combination's character. They can take something, turn it upside down, then inside out and sure enough, there is a gadget that no one ever dreamed of. The Aquarius-Tiger is an odd mixture. For starters they have a slightly off center personality. They are a touch on the unpredictable side. The touch that is added by the Tiger side is a lucid mind. The sometimes mixed up thinking characterized by the Aquarius is straightened out to a degree by the Tiger. For some reason the Aquarius-Tiger wants to remain young. This prevents them from getting attached in a permanent relationship with anyone. It is not exactly due to a desire to sow wild oats, although that can be part of the equation. They can be an adventurer in the sexual realm. They are a kind of a self-contained book of changes, but there is an unpredictability to their movements. They are a ship with no rudder and no anchor. They are the ones who invented that new computer program that everyone thinks leads to instant enlightenment. They took some nuts and bolts and an old treadmill and developed a massage technique that deals with the common headache. Their computer bookmarks are an odd assortment from mathematics to ancient Norse legends. They actually have and read books, but it does not stop there. They read the instruction manuals to the machines, shelving, woodstoves and kitchen appliances they buy.

Romance: This combination finds themselves in a situation where the statement, I am infatuated with you, is more true than, I am in love with you. They are romantic for this reason and generally not for deeper motives. Sometimes they actually tie the knot and most often that is a mistake and the relationship does not last. Eternal love is not in the metaphysical scheme of the Aquarius-Tiger. There is practically a pathological aversion to commitment in the being of the Aquarius-Tiger. They are not long haul types. They do not like topics pertaining to rings or gold. Even bringing up sharing an apartment can be risky. They love with a blazing passion sometimes. However, the blaze seems to burn itself out in time.

Relationships: To be avoided for compatibility in this combination are Taurus and Leo-Rabbits, Virgo and Scorpio-Buffalos, Taurus and Scorpio-Rams. The worst possible choice for a partner is the Taurus-Snake. In terms of love and romance, Dogs are a fine place to start. The pick of the litter are Aries, Gemini, Libra and Sagittarius. Another excellent selection is the Horse. While they are not quite as good as Dogs, they have a lot to offer. The best of the Horses are Gemini, Libra and Sagittarius.

Family Life: This combination loves their children but they are not the most patient moms or dads on the planet. They are, however, fair. In spite of their tendency to not want to settle down with a partner, the Aquarius-Tiger has a place they call home. Their decorating skills are fairly basic at best, so it is quite ordinary. It is comfortable enough and shows signs of their unusual abilities and interests. They will show their gadgets if possible, so one could find almost anything. There might be a personally designed computer desk or a wall clock based on the Napoleonic calendar. Perhaps they have speakers they made from scratch using a new method they discovered and they use for playing obscure jazz and modern classical music. Sartre's Being and Nothingness might be on their end table.

Likelihood: This is an idea person who works well on his or her own. They simply need a place to work and the appropriate tools to manifest their bizarre ideas. Many of these ideas, after they have been refined to less of a fringe state, prove to be extremely worthwhile. As bosses they can irritate people. As employees they are super if placed in the right position. The highly innovative mind of the Aquarius-Tiger and their mental acuity makes them perfect for those kinds of professions that require new perspectives or inventions. Regardless of what they look at, it is almost guaranteed that they will have a novel point of view at minimum. They are totally out of the box in their mindsets.

Famous Aquarius/Tigers: Georges Simenon, William Burroughs, Germaine Greer, Judy Blume.
