There is this great communicator in the form of the Gemini and the wonderfully attired Rooster parading around with total self-assurance. Anything requiring standing in front of crowds and the entertainment field in any capacity is designed for this combination. There is no better actor, performer, and entertainer than the Gemini-Rooster. There probably are none on the planet, at least when it comes to confidence, presentation and flexibility. That includes the act put on by doctors with good bedside manners. Knock them down or put them down and they will arise every time. They will not push you or punish you. It is fine to carry on doing things your own way, but there is a strong likelihood you will lose the benefit of their wisdom. They will entertain you regardless of what you elect to do. They do not quit. Reject them or neglect them and they are unfazed. There is a deep and profound sense of confidence in this sign. If you want to do something correctly, ask them politely and they will tell you; and yes they do know how to do things correctly.

Romance: There is probably a bit of a flirt still residing in this combination because of the Gemini element. But they are faithful to the core and there is no question about that. For nearly any combination, but particularly a Gemini, there is exceptional loyalty. They do not forget their lovers, no matter what they have been through in life. They stick with their friends and there is a good chance that they still know their first love; in fact, they might have married them.

Relationships: Virgo, Sagittarius, Capricorn and Pisces-Rabbits are not good choices for this combination. Additionally, Sagittarius, Pisces-Roosters, Sagittarius-Boars and Pisces-Dogs are not good choices either. There are some excellent romantic picks for this combination including Aries or Libra-Snakes as well as Leo-Dragons and Aquarius-Buffalos.

Family Life: To some they might appear to be homebody family people and to some degree that is true. But this combination wants to travel and to experience life. One of the anchors for their home is their children who they dearly love. They are, as a result, good parents. The Gemini-Rooster likes to be mobile. That is not to say that they do not enjoy their family, children and home, but they have itchy feet and a touch of the wanderlust.

Likelihood: Of course anything involving performing is right up this combination's alley and they would be brilliant at it. As employees they can be good as long as they are given some responsibility, a chance for creativity and a few people to be subordinates. There are a wide variety of professions that the Gemini-Rooster can succeed at. This combination can lead departments, take care of minute details or be in positions of leadership.

Famous Gemini/Roosters: Errol Flynn, Anne Murray, Joan Collins, Jane Russell.
