Combination with Boar Year:

"Steady" Venus, Air, Cardinal

"Cultivator" Yin-Negative Water

Characteristics: Honesty, Culture, Boarheadedness, Gourmandism, Materialism, Wrath, Sincerity, Hesitation, Voluptuousness, Indecision, Scrupulousness, Idealism, Talkativeness, Credulity, Gentility, Charm, Self-Indulgence, Manipulation, Procrastination, Equilibrium, Justice, Quarrelsomeness, Aesthetics, Gallantry

Everything the Libra-Boar does is centered on their love relationship. Another issue that crops up here is the concept of a one-dimensional person. Nothing comes close to the love of their life. The Libra-Boar has one focus and that is love; essentially everything else does not make it into their heart and soul. They are, as a result of this, excellent lovers. They are faithful to the one they love and there is no one else on the planet – forever. This, of course, gets highly intense and is way over the top for many, especially when the green monster of jealousy is added to the mixture. They may have interests, but they are a distant second. Libra seeks the lovely and the beautiful. It seems that without it, they will surely die. Boars want material possessions and quiet. The result is an individual who wants an easygoing life of love and luxury. This combination is cultured and they love all the finer things in life. They need a spouse who reflects their ideals and their dreams. Sorrow and depression can result if there is even a hint of betrayal. Everything in their lives is directed by and toward their spouse or partner. They work and they wait for their fantasy ship to reach their shore and when it does they can lead a life of overindulgence and have the love of their life caress and hold them as harps play and flowers bloom. Riches and gourmet food will be at hand and their lover will be theirs and theirs alone.

Romance: This combination needs almost nothing else to be happy. They might spend their entire lives trying to figure out who they are and what they like. Love, however, is never called into question. It is the summum bonum – the highest good. Perhaps, way in the inner resources of their being, there is an artist. It seldom sees the light of day however. The Libra-Boar, with its single-minded approach to life must find love in order to attain happiness. In the love department they will give entirely of themselves to their partner and do anything to help them succeed. Their world is a world of second hand happiness as their lover climbs the ladder of fame or accomplishment.

Relationships: Poor choices for compatibility in this combination come from Snakes and the poorest of all are Aries, Cancer or Capricorn-Snakes. Capricorn-Monkeys are not a good idea either. The best place to start looking for love and romance is with Rabbits and Rams. Of those, the Gemini, Sagittarius, Leo or Aquarius-Rabbit or Ram are the best picks.

Family Life: As parents, they love their children and do a fine job. They are tender and caring. Nonetheless, they do tend to put their spouse ahead of their children. The picture of a happy and comfortable home requires happy children, however, and that is generally what the family of this combination is like. Libra-Boars like to show off their homes and generally they are beautiful indeed. This is due to the love of beauty that this combination brings to the table. It will not be a house that sacrifices comfort in favor of lavishness.

Likelihood: There is talent in this combination, but it is generally not revealed at least not without serious motives pertaining to the person they love. They need a huge amount of togetherness in order to make use of their abilities. The same statement can be made about professions. As bosses, they are not especially strong. The Libra-Boar is, to a degree, a social climber, but there needs to be a qualification to that statement. They want to climb the social ladder for the benefit of their partner in life, not for themselves.

Famous Libra/Boars: Le Corbusier, Julie Andrews, Cheryl Tiegs.
