This combination speaks well and many of their points are made indirectly. To some they seem too serious, but there is a smile there if one looks at the right time and in the right place. They have the unusual ability to solve serious technical problems while at the same time being tuned into the cosmos. The Virgo-Snake is deep; exceedingly and mysteriously deep. It is true that they are intellectual and can out analyze almost anyone. That is not really the point. Something different begins to become obvious when someone notices the intuition of this combination. The understanding that is part of their being is a wisdom that seems to stretch to eternity. And this is coupled with the beautiful side of them. People are drawn to the Virgo-Snake almost as though they were human magnets. Not only is there the beautiful, there is an aura of sensuality about them. Make no mistake though. Among the things they can instantly analyze are people and they use this to their advantage. They want to be loved and respected. This makes them very good friends. None of this is to imply that they do not get angry, because they do. Bickering or downright verbal disputes are not uncommon with this combination. They do not like games and they do not like people to play with them. They are serious planners and know every curve, hill and pothole on the road they are driving. Their quiet interest in human nature results in fundamental honesty in the sense of sincerity. If they say something, they mean it. Their hobby is collecting people; and to admire them.

Romance: This combination finds it rather easy to flip a switch and become friends with a former lover or even an ex-spouse. Management of a partner from this combination is strictly a laissez faire approach; leave them alone and things will be fine. Push, bug, harass and manipulate them at one's own risk. The Virgo-Snake's love dialectic is difficult to get in focus. On the one hand the Snake enjoys going this way and that way and is not typically a paragon of faithfulness. However, Virgos tend to be steadier while, nonetheless, being erotically inclined as well. The result can have some novel but worthwhile consequences.

Relationships: Not particularly good choices for the compatibility of this combination are Gemini, Sagittarius or Pisces-Tigers. The same is true of the Gemini-Monkey. Strictly and totally to be avoided are Boars. Buffalos and Roosters who are Taurus, Scorpio and Capricorns are top of the line picks for this combination.

Family Life: As parents they tend to spoil their children. They give into just about everything because their personalities are not inclined to be dictators. Besides, they enjoy having fun with the children and have an excellent sense of humor. Virgo-Snakes have a bit of the wanderlust and they most certainly are not homebodies. This is reflected in their homes where they are not the least bit materialistic or interested in making a show. They want to be able to move about and perhaps to move on. While, like nearly everyone, they like to be comfortable, the story ends there in the décor department. While not gourmets, they do enjoy decent food and their cupboards will not be bare.

Likelihood: This combination is made up of smart individuals who have a particular ability in the realm of science and mathematics. Perhaps the part of the mind that makes this combination calculating, literally, distracts them from being especially charitable. In general, the Virgo-Snake is OK with work, but they can lean toward laziness at times. They have a knack for fixing and making things and are technically inclined. This aptitude will be evident from an early age.
