Pisces people are so sensitive that as princesses they would notice the bump on the pea under all those mattresses. They are so sensitive that its best they not watch the evening news programs because they would be reduced to trembling, sobbing wrecks before the end of the broadcasts of the worlds woes for that day. Pisces people are very sensitive. They are so sensitive that when the leader of their country states we must tighten our belts and double production They take it personally and indeed tighten their belts and leave from home to return to the workplace. When they overcome this sensitivity their power of determination and intention will come to the fore in strong way. Pisces people sometimes have a weakness about them; its dangerous for them and those around them because these limitations can pull themselves and others into despair and inaction. Action is the key here; healthy action such as that demanded by Tai Chi Chi Kung. By activating the Universal, Cosmic and Earth Forces Pisces will find the energy and will to get back in the swing of things instead of staying stuck in depression. Pisces people take friendships seriously and are loyal to the people who trust and admire them. They are dependable and their support may be counted on. Pisces people are broadminded and are open to learning especially through travel and personal experience. They have to be careful of being overly concerned about their future. Diligent and determined practice of the Six Healing Sounds will help Pisces to be more serene and rooted. Pisces people need this rootedness and open mindedness to support their highest qualities: awareness and compassion. They must smile and let go of that confusion that sometimes stymies their creativity and spirituality. Pisces people are given to strong emotions and must be aware and not let themselves be swayed by phony friends or shaky situations that life presents them with. The beautiful objects a culture can produce attract Pisces such as music, art in many forms and harmonious and lovely furnishings in the home are important to their sense of refinement. Pisces people are born to serve and with their wise, compassionate nature they can find self-fulfillment in service to humanity. The Pisces color is lilac.
