

Sun in Aries/Moon in Aquarius:

Innovator

Management of your life is easy because of your sense of what will happen. Essentially, you have a fairly clear vision of tomorrow before you at all times. This gives you a feeling of confidence. Being human, however, there are certain issues you must deal with. In your case, they are an inflexibility and self-importance. Your personal relationships tend to suffer because you are uncompromising and believe you are right. You are speedy in everything and go all out all the time. Unfortunately, you are always wondering why others cannot keep up with this superhuman pace. You are independent, moody and anxious a lot of the time. The Aries combined with Aquarius reveals an individual who is a pathfinder and in search of adventure. The new, the novel and the interesting are what you seek. You are very decisive and filled with tremendous energy. On the Aquarius side, there is an imaginative person trained on the future. Your main feature is a tuned intuition. On the intellectual front, you are fine because you are a tolerant humanitarian. Sometimes you are unaware of other people's feelings because you are assertive in your individuality. This blindness may cause you to appear arrogant. The thoughts, feelings and ideas of others need to be heard. You may be excited about some idea you have, but patience regarding the pace of others should be taken into account. There is unpredictability in you under your charming façade. Your individual autonomy is something you guard carefully and this means you do not like to get involved with individuals or groups. You can allow this to be almost a phobia if you let it go unchecked; from romance to the job you need to allow some freedom of movement for things to work. In order to be happy in your job and be successful, you must have as much liberty as possible. The unexamined, the new and the radical appeal to the inventive side of you. You are fun to be with, but you are also subject to temper tantrums and emotional explosions. A shotgun blast of anger does burn itself out quickly but you must learn to manage these flare-ups. Some of this needs to find a constructive means of release. Your Moon in Aquarius means you can be grumpy. To avoid some of these stumbling blocks, you would be wise to make an effort to avoid stressful and tense situations.
