

Sun in Cancer/Moon in Capricorn:

Low Self-Esteem

Your insight into people is extraordinarily good because of your experience. This gives you prohibitions and conflicts even though it provides special perceptions for you. You do not feel fearful of a future that is not certain like most Cancers. Your goals are very high as the result of your ambitions and desire for recognition. Your Capricorn aspect is goal oriented, distant and rugged while the Cancer part is benevolent, unsure and emotional. This obviously puts the signs in some opposition. You have inner disputes trying to solve issues and you need to build yourself up because of this. Inner firmness of purpose and determination have helped you over the early obstructions that in all likelihood you experienced in your childhood environment. This made you a self-examining and calculating person, especially for a Cancer individual. You are a quite serious person and learn things easily. Your strong Capricorn inner nature finds opposition from the gentler Cancer. You are in need of proving yourself for inner satisfaction as well as recognition from the world at large. You have a somewhat unique approach to life and you are never happy with external impressions. You approach it with a view towards change and novelty no matter what you do. Galileo the astronomer and the writer Ernest Hemingway were both members of your combination, and their work shows the totally different nature of the Cancer-Capricorn perspective. Seclusion is something that you desire, but while that may be good in limited amounts, too much can bring about alienation from the world around you and feelings of not being good enough. Depression, disappointment and withdrawal can come about with your continual dissatisfaction to achieve this. Even turning to drugs or alcohol are possible in severe cases. Try to recognize you have gifts and learn to appreciate yourself, while accepting your limitations. You have strengths that need to be acknowledged and it is OK to be sensitive in life sometimes. You need to work on accepting yourself and loving yourself. You can accomplish anything after you have learned to make peace with your inner nature. Capricorn's realism, organization, and aspirations combined with Cancer's vision and intuition can give you an excellent business sense.
