You can quietly coax and persuade almost anyone of almost anything because your presence is so tranquil and reassuring, and persuasiveness one of your great talents. Your aims are always the best and you are inherently honest. A problem for the Taurians is obstinacy. With firm resolve, you hold on to your beliefs and convictions. It is hard for you to accept a changing society and mores because you are somewhat old-fashioned. Your tragic fault is emotional inflexibility. Your best assets are charisma, inner security, and worldly wisdom, while comfort and material things are your major priorities. You have a very understanding side to your nature, although you are just as determined and goal-oriented as your fellow Capricorns. People believe you because they you have an aura of inborn steadiness, knowledge, and good sense. You are a charismatic combination and capable of achieving considerable success and position. The Capricorn-Taurus meets the severities of life with patience and resolve and is not one to wallow in self-pity or regret. You have the stubbornness to follow your objectives through and usually push them on to completion. You must keep your opinions supple and your mind open. Do not let fixed attitudes or bias run your life. Rather than dealing with them truthfully and openly you also have a propensity to repress your emotions. You fight to preserve that calm and self-controlled front as antagonism, anxiety, or frustration build up. Sometimes it is wise to open up and discuss how you really feel inside. You should do this with someone you can trust. You may be subject to turns of despair or explosions of anger otherwise. You will probably be reluctant to follow such a chancy career even though the financial world may attract you. You require a steady income. You search for a partner in love who desires all the good things you want from life too. Your perfect relationship would be an unwavering, caring partnership that enhanced your worldly standing and position in life. It would be wise for you to be a bit more experimental even though you are affectionate and sensual. You take a chance of adopting a self-satisfied or complacent outlook because your life may be fairly free of tension. You may compromise just because you are so effortlessly contented even though Capricorns are motivated by nature. You may have a penchant to let materialism become your only goal because you love pleasure and are sensual. You have gifts for administration, management, and long-term planning because of your combination.
