

Sun in Leo/Moon in Sagittarius:

Globetrotter

You are generally moving but there are uncommon times when you are silent. This only shows that you are preparing some new action or venture. You do not just sit and dream about excitement, you actually go for it. You want respect and standing and set high goals for yourself like most Leos. Recklessness undermines those positive activities very often. You are an eternal child at heart regardless of how old you seem, how hard working you are or how responsible you may be. You have an affinity for exploration and romance that will last your entire life and you are tolerant, enthusiastic and playful. You are an eternal optimist and very active. You have no time for depression or self-pity. You never bottle up your feelings and you are a bit naive. You are well known for your up-front views, frankness, and openness. Truthfulness and reliability are your principles. You are self-confident and spirited and have the assurance to put your magnificent ideas into practice. Action probably describes you better than any other word. Nearly everything in the world fascinates you. With, so many new friends to make, so many new places yet to discover, and so many dreams to consider, it is not surprising you cannot find the time to conclude anything. A daily difficulty for you is controlling your impatience. You must learn to direct your abilities and energies in a more limited area of activities and interests for you to be actually creative and productive. Make sure that your position or other involvement handles your need for stimulation and diversity, because if monotony or drudgery starts, you are ready to leave. You are impatient when it comes to obeying someone's orders and it is not simple for you to be in a low-level role. You must be the leader on the job and at home. You are totally independent. A certain amount of deference is needed in everyone's life, so learn to be humble now and then. You are sure to be your own boss eventually in any case. You will stay with things tenaciously, once you have discovered something that keeps your attention. You are not going to have many psychological hang-ups because you are so open and unreserved. Being deceitful with yourself or with others is almost impossible for you. One of the few barriers to complete fulfillment is pride. Your manner is distinguished, at times a bit haughty and condescending and you are a born aristocrat.
