

Sun in Libra/Moon in Pisces:

Scapegoat

The pain of another person deeply hurts you too because you are gentle and sophisticated. Hatred or dishonesty are almost unknown to you and you are always thoughtful in your dealings with others. Your path to self-realization may be barricaded by tepidness and uneasiness, as with all very sensitive and creative people. You are a very creative, sensitive, highly instinctive, and artistically inclined Libra. Practical expression can be found for many of your abilities. Your seeming tranquility and serenity amazes people. All working to your advantage in life are your diplomacy, charm, and subtle expressiveness. When young, you were naïve and innocent. It was, perhaps difficult to adapt to some of the tougher realities of life. Luckily, you are flexible and realize when to compromise. Therefore, through experience, you slowly comprehended how to survive in a world you saw as hostile. You run the risk of being repetitive and overly polite in your adult life. You are only happy if those near you are happy and you too often sacrifice your own happiness for the sake of others. Take control of your surroundings, instead of letting your environment be in charge of you. One of your biggest gifts is intuition. Your noteworthy intuition makes most of the decisions you make. With money, this is particularly true, and you somehow know incisively the right moment for a venture or investment. You work best in partnerships, as do all Libras, preferably with a person who can balance your tact with aggression. You have a great artistic sense and your vision is intense. You endure so that others may smile. Moreover, you do not put yourself forward, so others frequently get credit for your ideas. You need to take more chances and be more aggressive. It would be a pity, with so much ability, to let it go to waste. You may succumb to self-disgust or masochism, if you someday feel unrealized. Respecting yourself is important for you. Your environment has a lot of influence on your emotional health. You have to be measured when choosing associates and friends because you tend to adapt the moods and positions of those near you. Your relationships should be re-examined from time to time, ascertaining whether they are emotionally confirming or possibly damaging and harmful.
