

Sun in Libra/Moon in Virgo:

Civil Councilor

You have a strong need to express yourself and express your views. Bashfulness and timidity often stop you from meeting the right people even though you want very much to be well liked. Instead of trying so much to win social recognition by being what you believe people want you to be, you have to learn to be yourself. In your combination, there is a bonding of the logical ability and critical faculties of Virgo along with the aesthetic understanding and social consciousness of Libra, making you a very insightful and rational individual. Until you are asked a question or your views are requested, you are calm, reserved, and a little standoffish. After that you will answer with a long lecture. You like to examine and reason things out and you are essentially excellent at that. Your interpretations are almost always correct. Two Libra-Virgos are William Faulkner and Miguel Cervantes, and their work shows the extraordinary insight of this combination. You may find yourself compromising some of your very high ideals just to be part of the group. Being with the right people can increase your influence, so you should attempt to broaden the intellectual and creative talents you can give to the world. Areas such the legal field, social services, writing and the medical profession can use your extraordinary insight and logical ability. You can easily get perplexed and agitated if your surroundings are tension-filled and, like all Libras, you need calm, accord, and equilibrium. Look inside yourself to find peace of mind. Quiet contemplation and meditation are excellent for the high-strung Libra-Virgo. Equilibrium, form, and design are your special talents. You find it difficult to think if the colors in your office do not match, or the furniture is somehow not arranged right. Both at work and home, it is absolutely necessary that your environment is synchronized with your preferences. You are fulfilled through work, as are all members of the Moon in Virgo. You are trusted and esteemed by all who knows, you for your dedication, conscientiousness and sincerity. Do not let work become the be all and end all for you. You will be less apt to fall into a "been there done that" outlook of acquiescence if you develop external interests and try to enjoy as many of life's offerings as possible. Libra-Virgo people often suffer from nervousness and anxiety.
