

Sun in Pisces/Moon in Aquarius:

Sparkplug

Your nature is sober and reserved and you cannot stand showiness. You are compulsively truthful and thorough and you value and respect loyalty and sincerity in others. There is a wisdom and deep understanding of human nature revealed in your eyes. You project your sympathy and concern for people to the entire world. The social reformer, the fervent missionary, and the revolutionary are members of this combination. Moreover, your interest in science and the mysterious urges you to press the borders of human knowledge. The result of this mixture of signs can be confusing. In your combination the intellectual inquisitiveness, peculiarity, and social concern of Aquarius is paired with the deep kindness and compassion of Pisces. You have a bearing that suggests you are from the distant past. You have totally changeable moods. You might gaze off into space at a party, or look like you just arrived from the twilight zone. But if your musings are interrupted, you do not miss a beat. Your password is experimentation. You glide easily through a wide range of concepts and pursuits, until you find the one that suits you best. Once you have discovered your specialty, whether in science or the occult, you fix on it with resolve and an extraordinary sense of mission. Your moods need to be gotten under control for any kind of happiness. Why anyone would desire all the attention that love involves is a mystery to you. Your mate in life is treated equally but like a friend or co-worker. It is consequently critical that your partner understand your intellectual and eccentric activities. Because you are known for your patience and ability to forgive and forget, you will be an easy person to get along with. The issue of finding the right person is very critical here. You can be charming and funny one moment, then suddenly go totally silent the next. Maybe the most important part of your life, even though you do not acknowledge it, is people. You do not like the idea of frightening them off with your erratic and at times, illogical, behavior. You want a feeling of camaraderie with a lot people of both genders. The opposite sex is probably captivated by your otherworldly allure, innocence, and transcendental presence. People in general are more meaningful to you than are individuals, so you do not have much time for a romance with any single person.
