

Sun in Pisces/Moon in Libra:

Equanimity

The arts appeal to you. You are most likely a very creative person because you have an exact comprehension of form, beauty, and aesthetics. Your romantic soul extends to all things. Nat King Cole, Frederic Chopin and Rudolf Nureyev are natives of your combination. Your spiritual nature enables you to experience great joy. For example you can experience awe over hearing a bird sing. On the other hand, your refined emotions can also be a problem. People respond well to your soft-spoken kindness and you have an aura of peace. In your combination, the gentle, peace-loving, romantic Libra enhances the emotional strength, appeal, and sensitivity of Pisces. The secret to your combination is devotion. Once you have set your goals in life, few can match you for commitment and determination. You are also agonizingly aware of the rougher realities of life just as you are connected to the finer things. For a lot of Pisces-Librans, reality can be quite hard to deal with. Your unusual imagination might be put to use facing life's problems. That way you choose to escape reality. Possibly you just pick the path of least resistance and select a profession that offers little challenge or reward. A woman will be tempted by an expedient marriage; one that gives shelter from the world. We all need comfort and security but we should not settle for less to get it. Do not waste the many natural endowments and gifts you have. Your main demand in your life and work is tranquility. Your emotional balance can be upset by tension and this will cause you to get back in your shell. It is vital that your life and work environment be equally peaceful even though your combination is conducive to inner harmony. In many ways you are the ideal partner because you are extremely romantic and capable of getting lost in love. In a relationship, you know how to balance the give-and-take. Do not let your partner make all your decisions and become overbearing or controlling. You need a relationship based on equality. You are a nice and sharing individual, but be careful of being used by others. You are not happy unless those around you are. It is very possible that you are sacrificing your own happiness for others. There is nothing wrong with being a bit more selfish and self-assertive. Needless guilt is frequently an issue for the Pisces-Libra. It is absurd for you to feel guilty just because you are standing up for yourself.
