

Sun in Sagittarius/Moon in Leo:

Know-It-All

You are very energetic and have courage and an innocent interest in people and places. This can take you far and wide in search of reality and self-realization. But there is a good possibility you have it a little too good. With your balanced combination, you are so free of inner battles that you may be tempted to just get by and depend only on your fortune, humor, and communication skills. A Leo Moon steadies Sagittarian whimsy and inconsistency. The quest for position and leadership is primarily where your interest is aimed and you have very high and far-reaching goals. You knew at a young age that your mind's eye, creative drives, and broad capability set you apart from others. You most likely believe you are meant to be a leader. Other people instantly respond to your upbeat and affirmative manner. They also value your sincerity and inborn dignity. You just do not have the issues and inhibitions that hold back so many other people. You are open and outgoing. You direct your aggression into good, productive activities. The Sagittarius- Leo combination can be a happy-go-lucky, pleasure seeker or a solemn, goal-oriented philosophical person. Your forte is not introspection because you are so wrapped up in life that you allow yourself little room for contemplation. If you could just be a bit more meditative, you will discover the way to expand your many gifts. Gustave Flaubert and Benjamin Disraeli are famous members of your combination. Two roadblocks on your way to success are arrogance and bad judgment. Either or both of these could stop your progress. You long for an audience and are demonstrative and playful. At time it is hard to know whether your behavior is real or just designed to produce an effect because you have such a flair for the dramatic. That entire craving for attention is your way of boosting your sense of self and vanity is emphasized in your signs. It is important for you to note that flattery can easily lead you astray. You need to be reminded of just how great you are. You are naive in romance as in other parts of life even though you are enthusiastic, fervent, and tender. You prefer to go by your own intuition because you do not like to take the suggestions of others. In addition, you do not like to admit your mistakes. You are inclined to take things at nominal value, rather than stopping to look carefully and this often impairs your judgment. You are aware that the way things seem can be very deceptive. You need to examine your experience and you will become less trusting and a bit more alert to the ways of the world.
