You are characterized by flights of fancy. Frequently you may take the easy way out rather than making your numerous gifts work for you. You just adjust and accommodate. You tend to take on the characteristics of those nearest to you and you are emotionally weak with associates, family, and friends. You may let yourself down because of fear or lethargy, even though you have high principles. Sometimes you seem to live on a distant fantasy island and there is a dreamlike aspect to the Sagittarius-Pisces. Somehow when it comes to knowing who deserves your trust and who does not, you are led almost solely by your intuition. You can mix up dreams with the real world because you also have an extraordinary imagination. It sometimes carries you away. You are universal in nature, and this allows you to survive in almost any surroundings. You are highly impressionable and adaptable. The one main disadvantage to your vivid imagination and high amount of sensitivity is that it can be hard for you to deal with reality. You may be content to copy, or live using others because you set them up as ideals. This is a shame, because the Sagittarius-Pisces who is more daring will discover that only the smallest amount of effort can lead to better things. You feel the present and future must be happy and you are an optimist. You have two ways of dealing with negativity in your life. You may simply lie to yourself, accepting a fake kind of happiness or tune out troubles rather than handling them directly. You are extremely romantic and giving in love, and life devoid of love is unimaginable for you. It is essential that you have a good appreciation of yourself before beginning long-term relationships because you take the chance of having unhealthy associations, especially in romance. You almost certainly have a great love of learning and travel as well as to explore other places. Your combination would be good as anthropologists or historians. Ultimately those with Moon in Pisces can be artists or poets if they learn to use their magnificent creative abilities. Hopefully, you will get the type of guidance that will set you on the correct path and your talents will be recognized at a young age. You can have enormous happiness and have the capability to take pleasure in life to its fullest.
