

Sun in Taurus/Moon in Sagittarius:

High Roller

Originality and exotica are among your wide-ranging interests. You have difficulty finding things that hold your interest. Your indecisiveness includes nearly everything from a spouse or job. You are ready to leave for greener pastures the minute boredom sets in, and that usually happens fast. This, unfortunately, negatively impacts your goals. Both signs of this combination are spring signs, so you never lose your fresh and youthful appearance. Making the same mistakes repeatedly is often a pattern for you. You always have answer to an issue or quandary the moment it arises. The mixture here is of Gemini who has a logical, adaptable and witty character and a Taurus who is pragmatic, energetic and temporal. Very little goes unnoticed by you because you are very discerning and observant. The born detective in you can see a deceitful person almost right away. You search your environment out of a deep inner uneasiness. An assessment of your past actions would be a wise idea. Do not be governed by impulses of the moment, but rather base your decisions and behavior on what you have learned from the past. You are, in spite of being a Taurus, very expressive and do not hold in your emotions. Almost any area of endeavor would benefit from your numerous talents, which you can apply so realistically. Sigmund Freud, a Taurus Gemini combination, shows the ability to be a detective of sorts. His analytic ability is one you have as well, and consequently publishing, research or technological professions could be for you. Because you will probably have so many opportunities, your main concern might be on narrowing down your choices. You are a bit moody and somewhat belligerent in your relationships. You need a place to share your thoughts and emotions socially because communication is one of your basic outlets. You seem, on a more critical note, to be a little too aware of the macrocosm around you. You are also a bit of a troublemaker and faultfinder. It disturbs you if things do not hold up to careful examination because you are in search of perfection both in others as well as yourself. If you do not find it, you are critical, disenchanted and a bore. The Taurus Gemini combination is generally outgoing and has a vibrant nature that guarantees true popularity.
