

Sun in Taurus/Moon in Scorpio:

Killjoy

When you were young, you were probably an explorer, investigating your surroundings because you are a courageous and sensual mixture. Over the years, a feeling of incertitude began to influence you and you became lethargic. Expressing your feelings is somewhat difficult for you. You have a powerful need to let go of your passions at times, but you fear that if you do, they would become all consuming. You are a very sober minded individual even by Taurus standards. Everything around you is viewed with an acute and gravely serious eye. You are a loner and do not want others involved too much in your life, because you are mistrustful and tightlipped. There is a high level of suspicion in you and this can reach paranoid levels when you start thinking that others have a plot against you. You walk around at times as though there was a very serious and dire concern on your mind. You have a profoundly negative view of humanity and virtually smirk when you read something unfortunate in the newspaper that confirms your notion that our planet is evil. Essentially, you try to conceal your inner being. There are a handful of manifestations that result from stifling your emotions. Application of your energy can be utilized in numerous areas. You have a wonderfully creative vision and art, either as an avocation or even a profession, is possible. In the realm of business you are very clever and can be successful there too. Furthermore, you can spot misrepresentation and shallowness because of your excellent intuition. As with most Taurus people, you have an emphatic personality that makes you known and frequently dreaded. Going about your life in a contemptuous, sulking fashion and being fundamentally inarticulate can be the result. Another possibility is that you become tempestuous and turn to damaging habits. There is a prospect that you will take out your belligerency on others. These things are only possibilities. Release is important and that means being more believing, as well as expressing yourself without censorship. Opening up to others is not something to fear because you are a friendly, giving person who can be forthright with others. Having made a decision, you have a great deal of self-command and resoluteness along with the ability to surmount most problems or obstacles.
